reject the manifest absurdity of such a proposition.

"Why did God create man? God was good and being good he wanted to lift up all things and make them as good as he is. Lucifer and Christ offered themselves to be the savlor of mankind. Jesus was chosen because he offered the best plan of salvation. Lucifer's plan was rejected because he wanted power as great as God for his reward. He was expelled from heaven with his followers. Then began evil.

BUTTE STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

Salt Lake.

An Absurd Proposition.

Man, he said, was a spirit, and God a more highly developed spirit. The latter created the earth and gave man a mortal body. The fall of man in the garden of Eden, the plan of redemption and the crucifixion were arranged before the earth and when man was placed upon this sphere he was cut off from knowledge of his spiritual past. Mormonism does not claim that the fruth and intelligence and the spirit of man and woman did not exist. I heard a Christian minister once say that God created everything out of nothing. Something cannot be created out of nothing, not by God. A child ought to reject the manifest absurdity of such a proposition.

"Were Lively Times.

The strike of the telephone girls in Butte was productive of some lively incidents. The union girls were out for "blood," and had the opposing forces come together there would like the absorbed have been enough hair in the atmosphere to start a mattress factory. At least this is the color given the situation by newspaper reports from the smoky city.

The trouble all started over the action of the management of the Butte office in discharging Miss MacDermott, a union chief operator, and attempting to put Miss Alice Hope of Salt Lake in her place. There was a storm brewing immediately. The chief operator refused to quit and the other girls therefore the earth and when man was placed upon this spiritual past.

Mission of the Gentiles.

"The Gentiles have a mission. Their mission is to build railroads and steamboais. In respect to them I will say they are fulfilling their mission in civilizing and beautifying the earth. But they forget their part just as the Mormon do and go meddling with the affairs of their neighbors.

"I have nothing against the banker and the financier and the railroad man. God expects them to make good use of their wealth. But my patience is exhausted when Latter-day Saints imagine the imported girls were in Dillon, they walked out. The switchboard was left to take care of itself. The man who wanted to talk to a friend on the other side of town could shake the receiver arm and swear in forty-seven different languages—there was no fair manipulator of the cord to hear his "Sunday school" words.

With their fingers ready for a good, old-fashioned hair pulling match and their feelings in fine trim for the encounter, the striking girls lined up in solid phalanx before the doors of the beautiful building and he said, "What a mark he might have made for himself if he had been educated and had stayed in the east. He might have died many times a millionaire."

"Think of it. The fact that Brigham Young had built temples, founded cities."

That was the Gentile's notion of greatness, to die a millionaire. They are willing to put Brigham Young's dust with the lesser lights in the temple of fame. If he is not good enough to be with the greatest, let him not be there at all. I presume the men who founded millions and left them for their children to fight over are the ones to be with the greater lights," added the speaker with withering sarcasm that caused a ripple of mirth.

Raided the Building.

They promptly attempted to prevent the delivery of the goods. But they were temporarily unsuccessful. Later, however, the girls gathered some boys together and the latter managed to effect an entrance into the exchange. In a few moments pillows, mattresses, window curtains and various other articles of household furnishings began to rain through the air from the upstairs windows. The strikers were in high glee and the crowd of people stood about enjoying the situation when the

Mr. Tout has, indeed, practically arranged and conducted each of the five concerts since he has been here. Valuable aid has been rendered in the past by Miss Emma Lucy Gates, Miss Nannie Tout, James Trethewey and others from Utah, as well as by some talented artists of London, notably Cecil Montague, pianist, and Charles Cook, 'cellist.

Last Friday evening, in the Pinsbury town hall, a concert was given before an audience that filled every seat and occupied the standing room. It was a gathering of Intelligent, musical people, and the programme rendered was of a high standard, suited to their tastes.

The leading vocalist was Miss Emma Ramsey, who had kindly arranged her departure from Paris on her way home so as to be here and sing. She made an excellent impression and after her beautiful rendering of Weber's "Grand Air der Freyschutz" the outburst of applause continued until she reappeared and sang an encore. An Unknown Man Found Floating in River Near Blackfoot. (Special to The Herald.)

(Special to The Heraud.)

Blackfoot, Ida., April 19.—The body of an unknown man was found lying in Snake river today by a fishing party. The body was evidently that of some farmer living in the valley. Although the remains had evidently been in the water for several weeks, they were fairly well preserved, and will no doubt be identified.
